Stewardship: Today's psalm makes clear that we and everything we think we own actually belong to God instead: "The Lord's are the earth and its fullness, the world and those who dwell in it." We are stewards, not owners, of our lives and all we possess!

March for Life: Registration forms for the 2016 March for Life Pilgrimage to Washington

D.C. are now available in the Youth Ministry Office. The trip is January 21-14, 2016 and the cost is $250.00. All youth in grades 8-12 are invited to participate. Join us as we march for the unborn and learn about life issues! Contact Katie for more information.

A Reflection on the Gospel from the 2015

Living Liturgy: It is no accident that the Gospel of Matthew has Jesus go "up the mountain," traditionally a place associated with divine encounter, to teach the Beatitudes to his disciples. The Beatitudes reveal the very Being of God ("Blessed," holy), God's care for God's beloved people ("poor in spirit," "those who mourn," etc.), God's intent for faithful ones ("theirs is the kingdom of heaven"). The Beatitudes reveal the mind and heart of God. Those who have encountered God and lived the Beatitudes have the same mind and heart. We call them "saints." There is a countless multitude of saints in heaven, "wearing white robes and holding palm branches in their hands", endlessly singing God's praises. There is a countless multitude of saints here among us who "are God's children now" who have embraced the beatific, Godlike way of living. While this feast day primarily honors the saints who have gone before us, we cannot forget ourselves on this day. They have gone where we hope to go.

There are many ways to be blessed. One of the attractions of honoring saints is that they offer a great deal of variety and richness of life for us to emulate. No matter what situation in life we find ourselves or what difficulty we face, some Saint offers us a model for perseverance in our blessedness and the assurance of care. This solemnity reminds us that our life of blessedness rests on an intimate relationship with God and each other expressed through enduring bonds of mutual care, mercy, humility and self-giving.
